Coleman to Water C.P.R. Trains.

Foreman McCuinig and twenty-five men are at present installing a stand pipe just south of the station. This stand pipe will connect with one of the water mains of the company and will water all locomotives running through Coleman. This means much for Coleman as some of the crews will now remain in Coleman much longer than hitherto.

LOCALS

Corp. Hall was in town on Tuesday.

Joe Grafton of Fernie was in town this week.

Call at the office of the COLEMAN MINER for well printed job work at special prices next week.

The Board of Works have already given orders for work on 4th St. and work has already commenced.

Kuropatkin a young Russian was killed on Tuesday in the Frank mine. Coroner Pinkney held an inquest on Wednesday.

Mrs. James McKechnie and daughter of Morrissey B. C. are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. L. O'Neil this week.

John Fignar is in the hospital suffering from severe injuries to head and back while working in the McGillivray mine.

A. Poulin was the successful drawer of the gold watch which was offered at a drawing by W. L. Ouimet. The number was 2071.

Mrs. T. W. Davies and son left for Liverpool, England, on Saturday, for an extended trip of three months.

Mr. Wheateroff is building a large residence north of the C. P. R. track, one mile west of Coleman.

W. J. Bartlett, J. D. S. Barrett and "Chad" Bartlett visited Coleman Sunday, after taking a pleasant trip around Coleman's boulevards.

The local order of Oddfellows will institute a subordinate lodge in Blairmore, next week. Many Oddfellows are going to Blairmore to assist.

Michel has now two news papers, the Reporter, the old stand-by and the Michel News, a politico newsmag. From all accounts they are engaged in a withering fire of words.

A large number from Frank made Coleman a visit on Sunday. Among them were Misses Berry, Murphy, and McMurtry and Messrs. W. G. McGovern, N. A. Martin, J. A. Naylor, A. Moore and H. C. Moore.

A large number of H. G. Goodeve's friends have requested Mr. Goodeve to exhibit his prize in his store window.

Charlotte Easton won the gold broach, donated by the committee for selling the greatest number of tickets.

Clark's moving picture show was well attended last Saturday night. The singing of the solos by Master Thomas Crawford was much appreciated. The last act, that of the Cowboys and Indians brought forth rounds of applause. Mr. Clark will show again tomorrow night.

Receive Report of Committee and Auditor

Meet Deputation from Moral Reform League.

A special meeting of the Coleman Town Council was held in the council chamber on Monday evening at 8 p.m. There were present Mayor Cameron and Councillors Clark, Holmes, James, McDonald and Shone.

The Mayor, after calling the meeting to order, stated that the report of the several committees would be received and discussed. The committee of Messrs. Shone, Clark and James which were to seek applications for the position of chief constable, reported that advertisements were now in four papers.

They also reported in favor of one official holding the position of chief constable, sec-treas-sanitary inspector, etc.

Councillor McDonald strenuously objected to this, as he believed that one man could not safeguard the interests of Coleman as well as two, especially when the office of sec-treas. was made a separate one.

Mr. May, addressed the council after Councillor James took the chair. He stated that the sec-treas. would have to hold bonds with a guarantee company and that it would be safer to have that man a separate official from the chief of police. It may be hard to get a man to fill the whole bill.

It was moved by Councillor Shone and seconded by Councilor Clark, that the three offices be consolidated into one. Yeas, Shone, James, Clark, Holmes, Nay, McDonald. Motion carried.

The Board of Works committee reported that they had met on Tuesday and gone over much ground. Chairman James found it would be expensive to improve 4th St.

He stated that 3rd St. should be filled in and cleaned off. The committee suggested that an engineer be engaged to estimate the cost and take levels of improvements on these Sts.

A bridge was suggested to be built close to the hospital, and a bridge should be put in over the creek at the end of Western Ave in West Coleman.

A cinder trail between Coleman and West Coleman was also suggested. It was found a culvert must be built on 4th St., as this street must be kept open.

At this juncture, a deputation from the Moral Reform League, composed of Messrs. Davies and Holmes was introduced to the Mayor and council.

Mr. Davies first addressed the council. He asked for the council's assistance and influence in opposing a wholesale license and in stopping the delivery of liquor from Blairmore.

E. Holmes followed on similar lines. He gave six reasons why the council should oppose a wholesale license.

After the speakers of the deputation had finished, the Mayor called on the council for their opinions.

Councillor Clark stated that while he voiced their sentiments and realized what they meant, the council must look at the question from a business as well

MONTREAL'S CAVERNS

LITTLE KNOWN SEPULCHRES WHERE CLERGY LIE BURIED.

Beneath the Roar of the Great City's Life Are to Be Found Hundreds of Tombs Where Rest the Earthly Remains of Men Who Served the Altars Above—They Range From Archbishops to Humblest Priests.

Far from the roar of life, the dead sleep their long sleep behind the monuments; but not all who die in Montreal are sepultured in the quiet city of the dead.

The dust of many is beneath the streets over which modern life moves with feverish activity.

Prisoners in the Roman Catholic Church, has died, shall also be buried when labor is ended; and in every city so distinctively Roman Catholic as Montreal, the number of sepulchres might be expected to last.

Archbishops, bishops, hundreds of priests, rest beneath the sanctuaries of the various Roman Catholic churches in Montreal.

A curious and eager life passes over their heads, but "cannot break their sleep."

In a past day, they were influential. They filled their sacred position with ability and with zeal. They spoke the living word.

They delivered their solemn message, and now they rest from their labors beneath those altars which are served by others.

One can find their graves in the darkness of subterranean depths.

By the flickering light, you can see the coffin-shaped mounds, made of concrete, which tell of sepulchres beneath, despatch the Latin inscriptions on the walls which set forth the vanity of all things mortal, and the tragedy of human mutation.

"Vanitas: vanitatum."

The little army of priests of the Seminary of Quebec was founded in Paris in 1641 by M. Jean-Jacques Oliver, and a branch of which was set up in Montreal in 1657, and who labored in the young colony under hardships of the most arduous nature. They founded the vaults in the great Notre Dame Church which is shortly to be the scene of unequalled splendors in connection with the Eucharistic Congress.

It is told, there are 125 buried under the sanctuary in Notre Dame.

Their names are kept in the registers of the Grand Seminary.

"Come, I will show you," said Cure of Ars, of the parish church, in that gentle voice of his.

Down the long flight of steps, deep down into the bowels of the earth, and one sees, by the aid of the electric flash, a great stone wall, stretching across the width of the Pensehurst.

"So this, then, is the door which leads to the catacombs!"

"No, you are mistaken. This does not lead to vaults in which we keep the remains of the dead."

"Ornaments? Souvenirs?"

"Yes; souvenirs of the past; gifts, relics, things of value from their age, and the associations linked with them."

"But here you see the vault which contains the dead. At least, you can't see it actually, for you see it is sealed up."

"This vault, which contains the remains of the Sulpician priests, has been sealed up since 1878. Since that date none have been buried at Notre Dame. This church was built in 1829. We took over from the crypt of the old parish, all the remains that were there, and despatched them in this vault. We have gone on burying in this church from that date until 1875, since which all the burials have taken place in the Grand Seminary vaults in the Sulpician street."

"Well, when the burial vaults were closed up the vault. We placed this marble slab against it. And above the slab you see this picture, which tells of prayer in the presence of death."

"Now, if one could break down this wall, what would one see?"

"You would see a large cross in the centre of a level space. That is all."

"The coffins have not been placed in tiers?"

"Oh, no. They have been placed in the earth, side by side, and, of course, one on top of the other; but not ranged in the shelf-like way which you will see in the catacombs of Rome."

"There is nothing visible, then?"

"Nothing. There is simply the level earth, beneath which the remains are."

"How many would you say?"

"Well, the list of names is carefully kept by the Grand Seminary on a street; but there is probably over one hundred, and there belonging to the Sulpician Order—priests who served the young colony long before the Cession, and who were sent out to this country from France."

"And bishops?"

"One bishop—M. Bonhriant. The rest are all priests. Now, since 1875, all the priests are buried in the vaults on Sherbrooke street."

"Now, on that date, this vault has never been opened."

"Never."

"And there is no thought of opening it?"

"To what end? The remains are due. We have the register. We know each name."

At St. Ann's church, in Griffintown, the priests of the Redemptorist Order are buried in vaults which are reached by a stone staircase. The coffins are placed along the walls, layer upon layer, until the ceiling is reached.

Each coffin is, of course, covered in with brick and brick lining inside, and the outer covering, but the principle is that of the catacombs.

A similar principle is carried out at the Hotel Dieu, with respect to the burial of the cloistered nuns.

HARDINGE AS SPORTSMAN.

New Viceroy of India is Keenly Interested in Polo.

Sir Charles Hardinge, the new viceroy of India, has taken the name of Lord Penrhurst on his elevation to the viceroyate, from a country place at Penrhurst, near Tonbridge, Kent. Much has been written of Sir Charles' cleverness as a diplomat, of his absolute freedom from political partisanship, which is a matter of such importance in India, and of his statesmanship, of his broad statesmanship and of his exceptional knowledge of courtly etiquette. But, however, we have not seen any mention made of his qualities as a sportsman, a recent writer in a London paper. Yet sportsmanship is important in India, where no one can hope to achieve success in any high office without a knowledge of polo and hunting. The dust of many is beneath the streets over which modern life moves with feverish activity.

Polo, as in the Roman Catholic Church, has done well, and when labor is ended; and in every city so distinctively Roman Catholic as Montreal, the number of sepulchres might be expected to last.

Archbishops, bishops, hundreds of priests, rest beneath the sanctuaries of the various Roman Catholic churches in Montreal.

A curious and eager life passes over their heads, but "cannot break their sleep."

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish for Personal Effects.

At the time of our first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out. In the satisfaction of a caprice or the love of some effect which he was apt to induce in others, he had, fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the Judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of deer and stag, and the white wings of his family mustache, Clemens was disconcertingly clothed in that sealskin coat, which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied him down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this is inflamed, a running, rank, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed, forever.

There are cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hell's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular.

A Bad Condition

of Liver and Stomach

Chronic Indigestion and bowel trouble which is overcome quickly by Dr.

CHASE'S KIDNEY AND LIVER PILLS

To the person with liver and stomach trouble, who has been unable to live and life is scarcely worth living.

How different he feels even after the first dose of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. There is no treatment like them.

What a difference! Languid feelings after meals, when the process of digestion is going on. What annoyance from belching wind, pressure of gas on the abdomen, and consequent smothering sensations. What a miserable condition of health comes from this.

And yet how easy it is to change all this by use of this medicine of well-known and decided remarkable value.

You are not making any experiment when you use Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills for liver, stomach and bowel disorders. You can be sure before you buy them that they will be satisfactory.

You will not wonder then why some people are so enthusiastic when they talk about Dr. Chase's medicines.

Mr. J. H. L. Lorraine, West L'Arme, C. B., writes: "I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's medicines and believe that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills saved my life. I was a great invalid, and entirely unable to do any work. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured me and I have recommended them to many people. I have had no trouble with them and have not thought of being without them in the house."

LIQUOR LEGISLATION

In order that the ratepayers of Coleman will not be misled by sundry statements of the more advanced moral reformers the MINER wishes to state plainly that no town council can legislate out of existence any provincial wholesale license, or in any way impede the granting of such. It is true there is a legitimate procedure to follow when presenting a remonstrance properly signed by an adequate number of property owners.

We are to-day face to face with traffic that enriches a man who lives in another town. We are face to face with its accumulating carousing tendencies. These are aggravated by a supply only to plentiful, when a certain conveyance visits our homes. The pathway is strewn with the effect of a wholesale debauch.

The point for the moral reforms to remember and that clearly is that they cannot hope to obliterate with one stroke, the liquor question. It is obvious that a wholesale license under our council's supervision is a step nearer the mark. There is also no doubt, one applicant for a wholesale license, who will not further seek it if the called peddling of beer from another town is stopped. When eighty-five per cent of the property owners sign an application for a wholesale license, there is something more than sentiment behind it. We know we are being lied, we know the result of beer peddling, it is up to the property owners of Coleman to assert their rights and place the liquor question on a sound ~~sane~~ basis.

By stopping the peddling of beer or supervising closely a new wholesale license we rise another notch.

The moral reformers must remember that if they desire legislation prohibiting all wholesale houses then the ordinance would undoubtedly extend the limit of the retailer.

So far as wholesale right and privileges are concerned, these houses have a perfect right to solicit business anywhere in the province of Alberta, either by wagon or railroad. According to law they can have an agent to represent them to solicit business. In delivering by railway carriage or wagon it is necessary for the agent to have individual orders from each person or persons covering the amount shipped to each individual. Under the Act they cannot peddle from door to door without first obtaining order for goods.

To remedy the so-called peddling it will require legislation to not allow a representative to solicit from anyone except license holders, then if this were done the government would require to extend powers of the hotelkeeper. But then they should be limited to quantity as they are in the province of British Columbia. There a man may obtain in the wholesale house twelve quart bottles of spirit, or two gallons of spirit in draught and 2 dozen bottles of beer, none to be consumed on premises.

The question requires more thought than is shown by certain flimsy irresponsible remarks, men who never weigh any matter, give to it. You cannot legislate for the common good unless you legislate in a spirit of fairness to all the majority and minority.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Coleman's first civic day is appropriately set for thanksgiving Day. Towns are not made in a day. Everyone should turn out and honor the day and town.

It will be easier for Councilor James to represent twenty-one million people than it will be to explain to the business men why their business should go to the dogs.

Councillor Clark does not mince words. He showed clearly how to get the peddling of liquor stopped and thereby lessen the evil. Taking a bull by the horns only infuriates him. You might lead him but you can never coerce him.

Councillor Shone believes in living up to his name. The hill henceforth will be illuminated with shining lights both municipally and electrically.

The provincial assembly meets in November. We hope Mr. O'Brien obtains aid for the road around the bluff.

The audit of the towns books by Mr. Ross is both exhaustive and lucid. The town has a large surplus over current costs.

Mr. H. Gate is certainly entitled to the chief Constables position. He has worked hard and long at a minimum salary and is well recommended by the old council as a public official.

Is it business to combine the offices of Chief Constable and treasurer?

Board of Trade Meets

The regular meeting of the Board of Trade was held on Thursday night. Members present were Pres. Guimette and Messrs. Manly, Goodeve, Willmott, Janostak, Davies and Brandon. H. Gate was secretary pro tem. The only matters of importance discussed were the lack of freight track facilities which H. G. Goodeve will inspect and a proposed meeting of the Prairies and Pass Improvement association. L. A. Manly is endeavoring to have this association bring railroad legislation before the Legislature.

W. J. Pennel and A. Mills photographers, are in town at present. They are taking general views of Coleman and many of the principal business houses and public buildings.

TORONTO GIRL'S DEBUT

MISS JEAN NEBBITT SCORES A TRIUMPH IN LONDON.

Gifted Pianist and Pupil of Teschetsky Appears in Recital in Bachstein Hall and Shows That She Is Marked to Go Into the Company of the Great Virtuosi Whom Her Master Has Produced.

An event of considerable importance took place recently, when Miss Jean Nesbitt, a gifted pupil of Teschetsky, and a native of Toronto, made her first London appearance in a recital at the Bachstein Hall. Miss Nesbitt, if she fulfills the promise displayed in her performance, will undoubtedly find herself in the ill-lustrious company of great pianists, including Paderewski, Hambourg, Schönbrunn, and Estrell. She has recently launched from the school of the famous Vienna master. She is possessed of an adequate technique which has all the brilliancy and polish, which are the hallmarks of Teschetsky, with little of the hardness which cultivation of these qualities is apt to produce; her tone is full and singing and she has more than ordinary interpretation power. Her playing of Italian Concerto was marked by a keen sense of rhythm, neat execution, and artistic phrasing, which aroused immediate attention and interest. Her Beethoven (Molto animato) was also marked by a sense of beauty and an precision of the spirit of the music, and was entirely free from false sentiment. The contrasts in this typical work were well judged and well controlled, and the grace of phrasing was notable.

Music Justice Avery.

A good orsman—he was captain of his college boat at Cambridge, a camel shipper, horseman, falconer, and tennis-player. Mr. Horace Avery, K.C., one of the new English judges, plays hard and works hard. He was one of the finest criminal lawyers at the Bar, and is said to have defended more than 1,000 men in his time, being regularly retained by the sheriffs when they had a fund for the defence of poor criminals. He is a man of whom few anecdotes are told, indeed in his long career, extending over a period of forty years, he is alleged to have made only one joke. This was it. The counsel opposed to him in a certain case quoted a text from the book of Job to emphasize a point, and did not think such evidence is admissible," said Mr. Avery, gravely, "seeing that you cannot put Job in the witness box."

"A Guinea an Ounce."

It is six years ago since Sir Clement Markham, who recently celebrated his eightieth birthday, commenced to explore the Arctic regions, and, in his opinion, we now know more about the North Polar regions. Sir Clement was a member of the 1850 expedition which searched for Franklin. But, apart from his travels in the Arctic regions, he has explored many other parts of the world. For he has the most valuable things he ever did was, when a two years' expedition in Peru, he introduced the quinine-bearing cinchona trees from Peru into India. In the part of the world thousands of traders and settlers could scarcely exist without quinine, which before Sir Clement's expedition cost as much as a guinea an ounce.

Bees Hesse Station.

Six hives of bees, despatched from Guildford to Malden, near Kingston-on-Thames, England, were productive of an exciting incident at Surbiton station, when an American who had come to take the bees out of the van at Surbiton. But one of the hives fell to pieces, and the porters had to beat a retreat. The train could not wait, and the van had to stand on to Waterford, where the incident referred to Surbiton. Once again the porters entered the van and succeeded in dragging the hives on to the platform. The hives were unopened, and the station, causing waiting passengers to scatter in all directions. Several members of the station staff were stung, and finally lighted pieces of oily waste were applied to the hive which was quickly consumed.

Loss of Life in Canadian Mines. The statement of J. G. S. Hudson, of the Department of Mines, of the loss of life in Canadian coal and metal mines during the interval 1892 to 1905, was:

In Canada the average for ten years, 1892 to 1905, per 1,000 men, was:

British Columbia, coal mines, 2.67.

British Columbia, 1905, metalliferous mines, 5.92.

Ontario, 1907, copper and nickel, $1.19; silver and iron, 7.26.

BOOSTING THE CENTENNIAL.

Hugh Sutherland Gives a Free Lesson Regarding Value of Exposition.

"There is not a right-minded Canadian who does not believe in the International Exposition, or Selkirk Convention, which had in Winnipeg in 1914, as the best means of placing Canada's goods before the world," says John Arbutinot, in July Canada Monthly. Of course, there are some opposing voices, as there always are, but the majority of them are rapidly becoming converted. Not long since Mr. Hugh Sutherland, of Winnipeg, met one of the protestants in a smoking-room, stoutly expressing his opinion that "the scheme was all right for the West, but for the East all hally rot."

"Ah!" said Mr. Sutherland, blandly. "May I ask what business you are in?" The protestant was a bottle-maker, and he didn't see any good any exposition was going to do him.

"No?" said Mr. Sutherland. "Well, I am a bottle-maker. At a mineral water plant I use 10,000 thousand bottles a week. Yet am I on your order books? Did I ever buy a single bottle from you?"

"Sutherland," said the bottle-maker, pointing to his ears. "Why no, I don't think you ever did. Why don't you try us? Now our bottles—

"In the first place, I don't know about your plant. In the second place, I am able to get the kind of glass I want in any city. That city is Milwaukee. I ship them across the line, and pay extra on every bottle. I would greatly prefer to buy them in Canada. But you don't make them."

"But—" began the bottle-maker, hunting for his catalogue.

"Now," continued Mr. Sutherland, "if at the exposition you had an exhibit of bottles and I had an exhibit of glass, I could easily find out the kind of bottles I needed, and I would find out that you would make them for me, and if the gates closed without having landed my order, it would be the fault of your bottles." That's one thing the exposition is going to do."

"Him," said the bottle-maker reflectively, and was silent for at least ten minutes. "Look here," he demanded. "I took two hundred square feet of exhibit space at that exposition."

Old Man's Dream of Gold.

At the present and pathetic is a letter received a short time ago at the Bristol office of Davidson and McRae, Toronto and Winnipeg. It was written from Admiral Street, Exeter, in reply to a letter containing enigmatical words, the following is a faithful copy of the letter:

A postman brought a letter from you, and I was so glad to have it, as it looks as if I am going to Foreign parts, as an old witch told me I

Me and mother be ready to go. Wages be high for my kind of work says. I carries newspapers, and by 70 years old come next August. We mighty towns like London, Paris, paper too read, so I expect I should have heaps of money out there.

I saves up £1-1-1-2 last year, so you can use it of saving nature. Just what I think out there.

When the postman comes to go to the ship, we will be off like mad men, as we are told there miles of gold to be turned up and brought home. You shall have your share, and send us out, when there comes home.

For Canada's Archives.

Dr. Doughty, Dominion archivist, has returned from a visit paid to England in the interests of the work of the archives, and has brought with him an exceedingly interesting collection of historical papers and prints.

Dr. Doughty spent a month in England, during which time he was busily making arrangements for the safe keeping of his valuable old papers relating to Canadian history and collecting prints. Altogether about 100 prints have been added to Canada's collection as a result of the visit.

He made a very good series of early government of Canada, military and some early impressions of the Rockies.

The prints include a number relating to Lord Durham's mission to Canada, and the present state of the archives by the Durham family. Others will arrive later. They include a diary in Lord Durham's own handwriting and another in that of his secretary.

The Sea Gull.

There are over fifty species of this great scavenger of the waters, but the bird that makes our Canadian waters famous is the ring-billed and herring gull. There is scarcely any perceptible difference between these two birds, in fact they flock together, feed together and in every way enjoy a buoyant, free and friendly existence in each other's company.

The gull does not dive, as is commonly supposed, but picks up his food from the surface of the water. He is a voracious feeder, an animal of prey and he loves the company of his fellows. His characteristic coloration is white with a purplish bluish mantle which under the sunlight or twilight light gives him a bluish green hue.

The bird is protected by the Government and a heavy fine is imposed on any gunner found guilty of killing the friendly little scavenger of our lakes.

ROMANCE OF H. B. CO.

HOW THE GREAT TRADING COMPANY KEEPS ITS WEALTH.

All the Huge Commercial Institutions Started Under a Royal Grant Have Disappeared, but the Hudson Bay Co. Is Still Hale and Hearty—Its Dividends Are Free From Income Tax—Canada Had to Re-buy.

Lord Strathearn and Mount Royal recently presided over the general court of the Hudson Bay Company, which was formed to be sold to the crown, but was instead sold to the crown.

"Nearly every one of the great men of history was the child of obscure and commonplace parents," said a speaker in the House of Commons recently. He referred to the fact that two of England's greatest statesmen were father and son. William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, who was responsible for the American War of 1775, was followed by his son, William Pitt the younger, who became, in 1782, Chancellor of the Exchequer at the age of 23 and Prime Minister a year later.

The men of the new race were first described by Captain G. Rawling. The meeting is described as follows:

"Captain Rawling was making a short trip into the mountains. While proceeding with his party, he came across a small, dark, dashed sheep. There were visions of pig, but the quarry turned out to be two hillmen, who, after a long chase through the jungle were caught. They were dreadfully armed, and when captured assumed a more or less calm expression when their bags and spears had been returned to them and they were presented with some beads. Captain Rawling, however, was not so easily put off. What nothing would induce them to smoke it. Doubtless they thought it was poisoned. They were naked except for a grass helmet, a bag and a tiny skin robe. The man who was captured was four feet three inches and four feet six inches in height respectively."

"A few days after, when entering the hills, Captain Rawling spotted two men, forming the river bank and a number of other skins. The Virginian Company, which is the starting point of English history in what are now the United States of America, is only a memory. The Irish Society, which was to settle Ulster in Jacobean days, is probably not even there. The East India Company, most magnificent and illustrious of commercial undertakings, was dissolved in 1858."

"The Hudson Bay Co., of which the charter dates from 1670, remains securely entrenched in diminished but still princely possessions, and can still boast of a remarkable and compact body of shareholders."

IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS.

Sons Who Have Been as Celebrated as Their Parents.

"Doesn't he take after his father?" "Is he the compliment invariably paid to every boy during his first few years. And it is interesting to find how many of great men have actually followed in their fathers' footsteps."

Captain Rawling, however, was not so easily put off. What nothing would induce them to smoke it. Doubtless they thought it was poisoned. They were naked except for a grass helmet, a bag and a tiny skin robe. The man who was captured was four feet three inches and four feet six inches in height respectively."

"A few days after, when entering the hills, Captain Rawling spotted two men, forming the river bank and a number of other skins. The Virginian Company, which is the starting point of English history in what are now the United States of America, is only a memory. The Irish Society, which was to settle Ulster in Jacobean days, is probably not even there. The East India Company, most magnificent and illustrious of commercial undertakings, was dissolved in 1858."

"The Hudson Bay Co., of which the charter dates from 1670, remains securely entrenched in diminished but still princely possessions, and can still boast of a remarkable and compact body of shareholders."

HELPING HUMANITY.

Father and Son Viewed Conditions From Opposite Standpoints.

Twenty years ago, when the Chicago Advance, a disengaged young doctor in a large city was visited once by his old father, who came up from a rural district to look after his boy.

"Well, son," he said, "how are you getting along?"

"I'm not getting along at all," was the disheartened reply. "I'm not doing a thing."

The old man's countenance fell, but his son's courage and patience held persistence. Later in the day he went with his son to the free dispensary, where the young doctor had an unshared position and where he spent an hour or more every day. The father sat by, a silent but intensely interested spectator, while twenty-five poor unfortunate received help. The doctor forgot his visit to his boy but hardly had the door closed on the last patient when the old man burst forth:

"I thought you told me that you were not doing anything. Why, if I had helped twenty-five people in a month as much as you have in one morning I would thank God my life for giving me."

"There isn't any money in it. There is no reward on the son, whatever amount." Money," the old man said, still scornfully. "Money! What is money in comparison with being of use to your fellow men? Never mind about money. You go right along at this work every day. I'll go back to the farm and gladly earn money enough to support you as long as I live—yes, and sleep sound every night with the thought that I have helped you to help your fellow men."

SHREWD VICTOR HUGO.

Quint Way in Which He Bullied the Theatrical Managers.

Here are the methods which Dumas the elder and Victor Hugo employed when they had a new play to offer to the theater. Dumas would write to the director of the Porte St. Martin: "My Dear Friend—I shall bring you on Monday a new play which I have written, Miss Georges, Mme. Dovar, Boucic, Lockroy, Provost and five new scenes."

This extravagance would alarm the director, who would put off the production of the play till next week.

Then Victor Hugo would appear and shake the director by the hand out of his pocket. He would agree to everything.

The stock company would play his piece admirably, since all he wanted was a good ensemble; no new decorations would be needed nor any change at all.

So the piece would be read, and as the roles were distributed Hugo would say, "I am the author, and the first rôle should be to that part." "That is true," Horace would murmur, and a few days after he would announce that Frederick was engaged. Hugo would then remonstrate that this destroyed the equipoise of the cast, and Raucourt, Laferrière and Mme. Georges would be engaged. Then Hugo would attack the director, saying he had seen that the public had tired of what almost amounted to these great artists. If Horace showed reluctance at this, Hugo would threaten to withdraw his piece. And so the scene would go on till, little by little, Hugo had obtained everything he wanted, even to the changing of the paper hangings in the stage boxes.

Australia's Stony Desert.

The great stony desert of north Australia was discovered by Captain Sturt, an Australian explorer, in 1845-46. It is north of the river Darling and is about 300 miles long and 100 broad, consisting of sandy dunes or ridges. It is out of trees, except along the creeks, gives the country a sterile appearance. These dunes were probably formed by the joint action of winds and a gradually retreating sea.

According to Captain Sturt, these dunes were gradually lost by evaporation or carried to some undrained sea. The only vegetation, growing scantily, is prickly acacias in full bloom, all of stunted growth. Water is scarce except in the creeks which are sheltered, and this is generally brackish. Few travelers care to traverse this inhospitable desert.

A Quick Lie.

Presence of mind recently saved an eminent actor his gold watch and chain. While crossing a bridge in a thick mist he noticed a suspicious man suddenly loomed up out of the obscurity. "Can you tell me the time, gov'nor?" he gruffly inquired.

"You are too late, my dear sir," replied the actor snarly. "A gentleman who passed a minute ago stole my watch!"—Exchange.

The Aftermath.

Mr. DuFuy—I was so surprised to hear that you and Mr. Robinson were married. You have always used to claim their attachment was merely platonic. Mrs. Robinson, Yes, I remember. But now, I fear, they wouldn't claim it was even that.—Lippincott's.

Exercise.

Walking, we are told, is a good exercise—better than riding in an automobile. The trouble is that a great many of us are not looking for exercise.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Forecast.

Jones—What do you think will be the end of the woman question? Brown—There won't be any end. They'll always be asking 'em.

Prize Undeserved is likely to do the same.—Broadhurst.

Going it Blind

What would you think if we asked you to come to our store blindfolded. Lay down your Money — Ask for what you want and then leave it to us to give you full value for your money?

That would be 'NERVY' Woudn't It?

Well that is just what you do when you buy of a
MAIL ORDER HOUSE

Think it over carefully—Consider the Express you have to pay and see if you wish to continue

GOING IT BLIND

We sell you the same quality as cheaply as you can get it of any Mail Order House and you have the privilege of examining the goods on the spot.

Look at Our Windows this coming
Week. They will interest you.
